ABOUT MDAA

The Missile Defense Advocacy Alliance

MDAA's mission is to make the world safer by advocating for the development and deployment of missile defense systems to defend the United States, its armed forces, and its allies against missile threats.

MDAA is the only organization in existence whose primary mission is to educate the American public about missile defense issues and to recruit, organize, and mobilize citizens to advocate for the critical need of missile defense. We are a non-profit organization that does not advocate on behalf of any specific system, technology, architecture, or entity.

MDAA was founded by Riki Ellison in 2002 to generate public support through education for the continued testing, development, and deployment of missile defense systems.

MAJOR CHRISTOPHER A. BOYER

Maj Boyer is an F-22 Weapons Instructor Pilot assigned to the 302nd Fighter Squadron as the Chief of Weapons and Tactics, Joint Base Elmendorf Richardson, Alaska. After graduating from high school, Capt Boyer went to the United States Air Force Academy, arriving in June 2004 for basic training. Receiving honors as a distinguished graduate, he continued his education as a newly commissioned officer at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in August 2008. After graduating with a Master's of Science in Operations Research, he received an assignment to Laughlin AFB, Texas, arriving in July 2010 to start Undergraduate Pilot Training. Beginning in 2020 as the 3rd Wing Weapons Officer, Maj Boyer began efforts to modernize the Joint Pacific Alaska Range Complex (JPARC), the largest overland training airspace in the world, and host to over 100 Fifth-Gen aircraft between Elmendorf and Eielson AFB. This is vital to ensuring that today's warfighters can train in a live-fly environment to the United States' peer and pacing adversaries. Lines of effort span airspace revisions, air and surface threat updates, infrastructure modernization, and synthetic training military construction improvements. In conjunction with Headquarters Air Force and the Pacific Air Forces, Maj Boyer wrote requirements defining the attributes of future unmanned and manned Adversary Aircraft (ADAIR) to operate on the JPARC. In addition, designing training scenarios for USINDOPACOM, while working with congressional delegates and the test community, resulted in acquisition of future surface threat emitters representative of our peer adversaries. Maj Boyer routinely helps Eielson's 354 Range Squadron to improve JPARC infrastructure – secure radio communication, datalink nodes, range access, implementation of surface threats, and the requirements for the recently awarded JPARC Range Operations Center (JROC). Last, Maj Boyer's recent efforts as PACAF's synthetic training subject matter expert with the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) and USINDOPACOM resulted in approval for the Joint Integrated Test & Training Center (JITTC), a new simulator facility to be constructed at Elmendorf beginning in 2025. This project will drastically improve the way warfighters train in the future – moving from the live-fly environment to the simulator in order to protect fragile capabilities and to open the fight beyond the JPARC's airspace boundaries, combining all-domain assets across all services.
